Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: 1) Applicant's arguments regarding claim 1 (After Final Amendment pages 7-8) state that the Yamada reference does not leach automatically transferring data to a host device upon connecting a data capture device to a host device. Yamada discloses in figures 1-3 a camera capable of accepting an auxiliary memory card (MC). The camera includes a liquid crystal display section (30) the displays a plurality of icon marks (46-66) according to the operation modes of the camera (col. 3, lines 60-67). When the memory card (MC) is attached to the camera, icon mark (64) is displayed thus automatically verifying that the connection has been established. Once a connection is established, a user can press a button to request a transfer of pictures and the microprocessor (MPU1) instructs microprocessor (MPU2) to perform processing operations (col. 6. line 53 - col. 7, line 10). When the microprocessor (MPU1) detects that the select switch (34) is pushed by a user, the microprocessor (MPU1) instructs the microprocessor (MPU2) to perform a processing for a copying mode (col. 7, lines 18-24). Therefore, it can be seen that when the select switch (34) is in the desired position a transfer of information from the capture device (copying mode) is automatically initiated by the microprocessors (MPU1, MPU2). Although the processing operations performed by the microprocessors (MPU1,MPU2) are in response to a manual operation (pressing of the button) this does not mean that the reference does not teach automatically initiating a transfer of information. The claim does not require that immediately upon connection an automatic initiation of a transfer operation must be performed. Thus, it can be seen that the Yamada reference teaches upon connection of a data capture device (icon mark (64) is displayed) after a user presses a button to request a transfer of pictures the device automatically initiates a transfer of information from the data capture device (the microprocessor (MPU1) detects that the select switch (34) is pushed by a user and instructs the microprocessor (MPU2) to perform a processing for a copying mode (col 6, line 53- col. 7, line 24).

2) Applicant's arguments regarding claim 15 (After Final Amendment page 9) concern the same issues as above therefore the response above also applies to claim 15.
